

Threatened Native Plant Garden Update

The first working day for 2017 was held on 15 June. The garden, outside G block, certainly needed a good weed and tidy up. Quite a few smaller plants were dug out and re-potted in case they were needed for further planting at a future date. There are thoughts to maybe establish further threatened plants on another site on the Campus. I know Rachel and Kiri have lots of ideas for planting and we are all looking forward to replanting and sprucing up the garden.

A satisfying working bee

There were quite a few seedlings, kowhai, pseudopanax, one hebe that may be interesting found under mature plant of Hebe Speciosa and a rewarewa that have been repotted ready for future use.

Good sized kowhais and other seedlings repotted

